

TorchDisorder: what the refinement actually optimises

Gates (red diamonds) are the checks added after an audit found 25 of 35 archived runs ending with overlapping atoms that no loss curve revealed. They are advisory during the run and recorded at the end — an unphysical result is still written, never silently discarded, but it is labelled.